The effect of stabilization on isokinetic knee extension and flexion torque production.

ABSTRACT: The purpose of this study was to examine the effect of four methods of stabilization on maximal reciprocal isokinetic knee extension and flexion. Left knee extension/flexion was tested at 60 degrees/s in 20 subjects. Warm-up consisted of five submaximal and one maximal effort followed by three maximal efforts in each of four randomized stabilization conditions: 1) Hands and back stabilization; the trunk was strapped to the back rest and the hands grasped the seat. 2) Back stabilization; the trunk was strapped to the back rest and the hands were folded across the chest. 3) Hand stabilization; the hands grasped the seat and the back rest was removed. 4) No stabilization; the hands were folded across the chest and the back rest was removed. One-way repeated measures ANOVA showed a significant effect of stabilization for knee extension ($F(3,57) = 17.44$, $p=.0001$) and knee flexion ($F(3,57) = 5.37$, $p=.002$). Paired, two-tailed student's t-tests with Bonferroni correction showed that, in knee extension, no stabilization was significantly less than all others. In addition, back stabilization was less than hands and back stabilization. In knee flexion, no stabilization was significantly less than all others. In conclusion, the method of trunk stabilization significantly affected maximal reciprocal isokinetic knee extension/flexion strength measurements. Maximal knee extension/flexion torque production was achieved when the trunk was strapped to the back support and when the hands grasped the seat.

ABSTRACT: Three, 15 minute recovery modes between two maximal effort, intermittent work bouts were tested using eight male hockey players. The work bouts were comprised of six, 45 seconds skating trials, each interspersed with 90 seconds of rest. Performance scores were based on average distance skated/trial. Changes in lactate concentrations were determined from venous samples obtained at rest, prior to and following the recovery mode. Bench-stepping during recovery resulted in significantly lower lactate than for rest recovery, while skating recovery was not significantly different from either bench-stepping or rest. Subsequent performance (WB2) was significantly lower than initial performance (WB1) for all treatments and it was unrelated to differing post-recovery lactate concentrations. It was concluded that bench -stepping enhanced lactate removal but subsequent performance was unaffected by any treatment.

ABSTRACT: The authors have designed, constructed and tested a restraining apparatus to permit safe uninhibited hand propulsion of a wheelchair on a motor driven treadmill. The special design features of the tracking assembly minimize any potential hazard or apprehension associated with possible lateral or rearward displacement of a chair from the belt surface. Special linear bearings minimize any increase in rolling resistance at speeds ranging from 4 to 282 m. min.. The supporting frame is adjustable for variations in treadmill belt widths and different model wheelchairs.

Easy removal of the chair enables convenient conversion of the treadmill for walking/running activity.

Abstract: The present invention deals with an improved multi-step and multi-way valve assembly, which combines with multi-lift valve elements in a single axle to operate synchronously. In the multi-valve elements, only one couples with the fixed valve seat, and others valve elements couple with the movable valve seats. Here, the dimensional variation due to the manufacturing tolerance can be compensated. Besides, all valve elements are arranged between them according to their dimensions, to let the pressed liquid acting upon them produce a net force. Under this force action, the valve elements will steadily maintain at least on any one position of the two positions, and similarly, the movable valve elements will fit firmly with the corresponding movable valve seats, and let these seats return to the pre-set position and leave contact with the valve elements.

ABSTRACT

PROBLEM TO BE SOLVED: To make a housing type cabin multifunctional when it is housed in.

SOLUTION: A window screen 11 is housed in the inner side of a lid 10 serving as a front cover to be freely projected upward. One end of a base part 30 is connected with a support projection 25 provided behind a seat 22 in such a way as to be freely rocked, a roof 36 is taken up at the other end of a pillar main body 32 supported by the rocking end of the aforesaid base part so as to be concurrently housed in under the seat 22. In a state that a cabin is housed in, both the base part 30 and the pillar main body part 32 function as a carrier. A roof support part is removed from the seat 22, let both the base 30 and the pillar main body part 32 be erected, the roof 36 is stretched, and the other end of it is mounted to the upper end of the window screen 11, so that the cabin can thereby be formed up.

ABSTRACT

PURPOSE: To facilitate the fitting/removal of a battery and reduce the number of parts so as to reduce the cost by making at least one of battery holding parts rotatable.

CONSTITUTION: In a motorcycle- leased battery storage device fitted removably at a seat rail 29 and a seat pillar 30 extended from a pair of bilateral main frames 24 through the fitting parts 40, 41 of a battery holder 42, at least one of the fitting parts 40, 41 is made rotatable. As a result, a battery holder 42 is rotated only by removing one of the fitting parts 40, 41, and thereby a battery 54 can be removed/fitting in an extremely easy way without bumping against a tank fitting bracket and the like. Accordingly, the tank fitting bracket 37 can be fixed at the seat rail by welding or the like, and thereby fixing bolts and the like become unnecessary. The number of parts is thus reduced so as to reduce the production cost.

PURPOSE: To decrease considerably the volume by removing the stability to an original form by letting a synthetic resin material and synthetic resin foaming material pass through a pair of press rollers heated up to the specific temperature.

CONSTITUTION: A synthetic resin material and synthetic resin foaming material 4 inputted in a hopper 6 is air-extracted by a pair of pin rollers 9 as rollers in a first stage, and forwarded to a pair of press rollers 2 in a second stage. The synthetic resin material and synthetic resin foaming material 5 are obtained, which is heat-pressed and contracted, and further, solidified in losing the stability to an original form in the pair of press rollers 2 heated up to around 200 deg.C in the second stage. The synthetic resin material and synthetic resin foaming material 5 solidified are accommodated into a container 7 and transported. Scrapers 3 are provided to scrape off the synthetic resin material and synthetic resin foaming material 4 fused and adhered to the press rollers 2

PURPOSE: To ensure the removal of static electricity from forms without any error made in contact by providing an earthing member made of a conductor which comes in contact with the form, to one side of a form passageway on the curved side of the form.

CONSTITUTION: A form guide plate 21 is connected with a terminal on the earth side of a control circuit for a printer main body together with one of contacts of a detecting switch through a common conductor so as to be grounded. After a printing form PS let off from a stock section 19 strikes itself in contact with the contact point of feeding rollers 15 and 16, it comes in contact with the form guide plate 21 while being curved because a predetermined quantity is furthermore left off by a let-off roller 23. When the tip end of the form PS is let off from the stock section 19, it may come some times in contact with the guide plate 21 before it strike in contact with the feeding rollers 15 and 16, but said curvature ensures positive contact with the guide plate 21. Static electricity generated by friction with remaining forms and with walls when the form PS is let off, is removed through the conductive guide plate 21.

Abstract (Basic): US 20020096929 A1

NOVELTY - Each forearm support, coupled with respect to a base portion, has a vertically oriented segment (56) extended downwardly from the lower edge of the plate portion of the base portion. Each forearm support includes an arm support plate (62) extended forwardly from the vertically oriented segments to allow the forearm of a person seated on the armless chair (30) to rest thereon.

DETAILED DESCRIPTION - The vertically oriented segment has a lower end with an arcuate recess formed for being positioned on a thigh of a person seated on the armless chair to which the massage chair converter is attached. A headrest portion is coupled with respect to the base portion, in which the headrest portion can be adjusted vertically and angularly with respect to the base portion. The headrest portion has a padded portion (36) for receiving the face of the person seated in the armless chair, and vertical rails (48) adjustably coupled to a horizontal portion (46) for angularly adjusting the padded portion with respect to the base portion.

USE - For attaching to an armless chair to create a massage chair.

ADVANTAGE - Can be easily and efficiently manufactured and marketed. Has durable and reliable construction. Susceptible of low-cost manufacture with regard to both materials and labor and susceptible of low prices of sale to consuming public, thereby making portable massage chair converter economically available to the buying public.

NOVELTY - This invention is about the producing procedure of lightweight brick. This brick is made of concrete, has extremely lightweight, and is good in heat and sound insulation. The proper proportion admixture of concrete, water, plaster, aluminum powder, starch, fiber, and hardener is made first, then displace it into each form. The steam-cured method is utilized and the temperature is kept at 100approximately110 centigrade for 1.5 hours. Next is to remove forms and let it cool in the air. Then the product is superposed with trestle plate and packed. Thus, the lightweight brick is a good construction material for compartment and easy for transportation, well structure, convenience for transporting and constructing is got.

Abstract (Basic): DE 19641011 A

The sales stand is in the form of a singled-axled trailer, which has at least one height adjustable mast, to which a protective canopy (4), which forms a roof that can be lowered, can be fixed over a sales counter (2). The canopy also has a valence (5) which hangs down on all sides.

The top of the canopy has tensioning flaps (6) fixed onto the region (4b) which is adjacent to the valence. When the canopy is lowered, the flaps can be fastened on all sides to corresponding supports (7,8) on the vertical side walls (2a) of the counter. When the canopy is fastened to the sides, the valence and the region of the canopy which is adjacent to it, are arranged inwards and are fixed to the underside of the canopy.

ADVANTAGE - Prevents canopy flapping in the wind, and the ingress of dirt under the canopy, when stand is being transported as a trailer.

Abstract (Basic): WO 9512775 A

The valve (10) comprises a housing (20) with an air inlet (23) and outlet (24), a connector (25) for the used air duct (60), and a ball (42). The ball can move between a lower position in which it rests by gravity against a shoulder (41), and a raised position where it is moved away from the shoulder by an air flow, allowing the used air to escape through a grid (26) at the bottom of the housing.

The valve housing has a seat (51) against which the ball is placed when in its second position. The seat has a central aperture, and the ball is held against it under the effect of a pressure differential between the inside and outside of the seat. The ball and housing are made from an insulating material.

USE/ADVANTAGE - Allows used air out without letting cold air in, causing a loss of heat in the building. Suitable for use with drier, toilet ventilation system and other domestic appliances.

The puzzle comprises a playing board having a square, flat playing surface and movable chicklets of equal thickness and of equal square size. At least some of the chicklets are decorated so as to form a picture on their appearance surfaces only when the puzzle is solved by moving the chicklets into a solution position. The chicklets are movable in a horizontal plane along a flat surface within the board.

The board has a retaining curb (herb) around the border of the flat playing surface. A transparent retainer is parallel to and spaced above the flat playing surface by slightly more than the thickness of the chicklets and adapted to retain the movable chicklets in a playing area and to permit the player to see the appearance surface of all of the chicklets. Abstract (Basic): US 4985661 A

A transformer is connected through a rectifying diode to the positive terminal of the battery to provide a semiwave rectifying-charging circuit to charge the battery The AC power failure lighting circuit comprises a secondary coil bridged with a capacitor series connected with another diode, the capacitor having its both ends connected to the negative end and the gate of a silicon controlled rectifier. The silicon controlled rectifier has its positive end series connected to the auxiliary lamp bulb to further connect to the battery and having its gate connected to the positive terminal of the battery.

The photoresistor forms a bias voltage circuit with both ends connected to the battery and the gate of the silicon controlled rectifier. This detects ambient light intensity to turn on the auxiliary lamp bulb of the auxiliary lamp assembly, through the operation of the AC power failure lighting circuit, during AC power failure under low ambient light intensity. The auxiliary seat may be removed from the main seat to let the auxiliary lamp assembly serve as an independently emergency lamp for flexible applicaton.

USE - Desk lamp for normal or emergency use. (6pp Dwg.No.2/3

Abstract (Basic): US 4695114 A

The lighting fixture hanging panel and brackets has a flat rigid panel with a large and small aperture and is shaped to fix a suspended ceiling grid. The panel may be of heavy plywood for supporting a hanging light fixture. An elongated light fixture suspending bracket has a circular portion shaped to fit over an aperture in the panel with the circular portion having several threaded openings positioned to receive threaded fasteners from a lighting fixture being attached to the lighting fixture bracket. The lighting fixture suspending bracket circular portion also has an elongated opening, and a bracket electrical receptacle adjacent to the lighting fixture suspending bracket elongated opening.

A switch is attached to the lighting fixture suspending bracket and a pull cord extends through to the small aperture in the panel. The switch is connected to the receptacle so that a light fixture may be rapidly attached and removed in lighting fixture showrooms. The circular portion in the bracket may be sunken to align the bracket by placing the circular portion in the panel aperture.

ADVANTAGE - Enables rapid attachment to ceiling to form attractive display, and quick removal for sale. (4pp Dwg.No 1/4)

Denim, contg. excess dye and sizing, is washed in an aq. soln. contg. (A) an amphoteric surfactant (I); (B) at least one perborate, phosphate or organic builder; (C) a carbonate salt pH builder (pref. Na (bi)carbonate); (D) a metal carboxylate salt lubricant; and (E) a light mineral oil lubricant. The fabric is then rinsed and dried.

Construction of a vaulted cover for a cylindrical tank involves a form wall of flexible material on a fixed frame which bounds a pressure chamber supported on a non-compressible underlay. The form wall is raised for insertion of the cover form and covered with hard-setting material then removed.

Water is introduced into the tank, for non-compressible underlay preparation. The form wall is joined to the top edge of the tank wall, acting as fixed frame, and the cover is made when the pressure medium has been introduced into the chamber and the form wall raised. Water is subsequently let out, and the form wall removed.

SO2 is removed from gas by (a) absorbing the gas with an alkaline soln. contg. esp. Na+, K+, NH4+ cations which extract SO2 from the soln. and fragmenting the soln by electrodialysis in a cell with two compartments comprising alternating cationic and bipolar membranes. The SO2 is recovered with efficiency as gas, particles of dust and heat are removed from the gas, in a form which can be sold commercially or in other forms which can be scraped, while the remaining gases can be passed on for use, or released to the air free of SO2.

ABSTRACT

PURPOSE: To enable the rental service of a portable telephone terminal cooperated with a credit card concerning the portable telephone system constituted in a specified area such as an amusement park, for example.

CONSTITUTION: The portable telephone system is equipped with a portable telephone terminal connecting means 1, number reading means 2 to read the number of the credit card and the phone number of the portable telephone terminal inserted to the portable telephone terminal connecting means and use tariff calculating means 3 and when renting the portable telephone terminal by using the credit card, an object table between credit numbers and phone numbers by individuals is prepared by using the credit card number and individual phone number read by the number reading means. While utilizing charge data for each individual phone number from the portable telephone system, the tariff of using the portable telephone terminal corresponding to the credit card number is calculated and automatically subtracted from the account of the credit card.

Abstract (Basic): FR 2784210 A1

NOVELTY - Card comprises a body (20), an antenna (25) connected via conductors (23,24) to integrated circuit chip (27), and a conducting junction (26) mounted on the other surface of the card body so that it connects conductors (28). The junction (26) can be removed by scratching so that the antenna is activated.

USE - Non-contact smart card or chip card having a means of preventing its fraudulent use before sale or issuing for example.

ADVANTAGE - Contact type chip cards have a protective plastic covering that encloses the card until it is sold or issued. Use of a junction that can be scratched off provides a similar means for demonstrating that a card has not been used prior to its sale.

card.

Employing Aeritas's Aeritas Express for Travel, airline Lufthansa is streamlining its check-in processes. The airline's m-Barq service taps the Express Travel mobile technology, allowing travelers to check in and board planes using phones that support the Wireless Application Protocol (WAP). Ticket information is displayed on travelers' wireless devices, displaying barcodes on the devices' screens. Barcodes are then scanned by security attendants. The barcodes are presented in two-dimensional (2D) format, allowing them to contain a wide range of information. Data includes flight number, date, destination, seat number, and more. If mobile devices are switched off, the information is cached. Additionally, travelers are provided with an URL if the mobile device's cache backup is purged with the addition of new content. Currently, the m-Barq service is being piloted, but response from staff and consumers has been favorable. Lufthansa hopes to extend the service in the future.
